Huber Franz (at Mühlbach) (scythe &c. manufacturer)
Wagner Max (ammunition mfr)

KIEL, situated on a bay of the Baltic, has good anchorage for vessels of any size, and those drawing from 16 to 21 feet of water can load alongside the quays. The population of Kiel is 208,845 (Dec. 1st 1910).

The Kaiser Wilhelm Canal, the canal constructed from Kiel Bay (about 3 English miles from the town) to the Elbe (about 98 kilometres), facilitates navigation from the Baltic to British and other ports, and has a large traffic.

The principal trade of the town consists of the importation of coal, timber, grain and oilseed, and the carrying of coal to the smaller ports along the coast. There is also a large transit trade carried on here, chiefly by rail to Hamburg and to the interior of Germany, consisting of butter, oil, flour and some minor articles. Flour is also exported direct to Great Britain and to the northern countries. The imports consist principally of coal, building material, wood and timber, ice, fish, grain, maize &c.; the exports consist of flour, foreign wood, coal, ironware, grain, malt, potatoes and fruit, oil and oilcake. The imports from Great Britain amount to about 40 per cent. of the whole and chiefly consist of coals. There are large flour mills, distilleries, two iron shipbuilding yards and floating docks. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

Lloyd's Agents, Sartori & Berger.

KOBLENZ, see COBLENZ.

KOLBERG (POMERANIA), situated on the Baltic, 57 mile. N.E. of Swinemünde. Population 24,000. Here are saw mills, iron foundries and engineering workshops. The entrance of the port and the harbour itself is very narrow, but ships up to 72 metres length can turn round inside. The average depth of water in the entrance is 17½ feet, and the inner harbour has only 1 foot less. The principal articles of import are coals, corn, manure, stone and oilcakes, and of export, grain, wood, pitprops and potatoes. The import of piece goods is effected mostly viâ the port of Stettin, whence one steamer per week is despatched for Kolberg.

Lloyd's Sub-Agent, E. Reinholz.

KÖLN, see COLOGNE.

KÖNIGSBERG.—Pillau is the seaport of Königsberg and Elbing. The new channel from Pillau to Königsberg allows vessels of 20 feet draft to proceed to Königsberg without lightening at Pillau. The population of Königsberg on Dec. 1st, 1910, was 248,059. This port is the great outlet of flax and hemp, and the traffic in timber, corn, grain and seed is very considerable, being the chief staple imports.

The principal imports to Königsberg consist of tea, coffee, rice, spices, fruit, tallow, coal and coke, building materials, petroleum, wine, spirits and herrings.

The following regular lines of steamers leave this port for the Continent and Great Britain: The London and Hull line, Messrs. Bailey and Leetham, Hull and Det Forenede Dampskibs Selskab, Copenhagen; Leith and Rotterdam: Currie line; Leith, Nantes, Bordeaux, Rouen, Antwerp, Copenhagen, Hamburg, Stettin &c.; other ports, The Neue Dampfer Compagnie, Stettin; Königsberger Dampfer Compagnie; Sartori and Berger, Kiel.

LEIPZIG, in Saxony, has a population of 620,000 inhabitants (Jan. 1914). It is one of the most important commercial cities in Germany. A very large business is carried on in furs, leather, bristles, wool and colonial goods. Leipzig is the centre of the railways to Dresden, Magdeburg, Hof, Berlin, Cottbus and Thüringen. It is a great banking centre and has an important oil and produce exchange. It is also the centre of the German book trade. There are a large number of factories engaged in the manufacture of tobacco, cigars, pianos, oil cloth, engines, paper, artificial flowers, musical boxes, chemicals &c. The Leipzig fairs take place: The first on the first Monday in March, and lasts eight days; the second in the week after Easter and the last about the end of September. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

LÜBBENAU, see COTTBUS.

LÜBECK is situated 11½ miles above Travemünde, on the river Trave, and has a good harbour. It is 35 miles N.E. of Hamburg and has a population of 113,168 (June 30th, 1913).

The principal imports from Great Britain consist of coal and coke; this trade is, however, subject to keen competition by the Westphalia coal. The principal markets of Lübeck are the Northern countries, Sweden, Finland and Denmark. Here is a Chamber of Commerce. The total number of steam vessels entered during 1912 was 2,960 of 788,262 tons. The total imports during 1912 were valued at £7,265,100 and the exports at £11,441,000.

MANNHEIM, in the Grand Duchy of Baden, is a town of 193,379 inhabitants (December 1st, 1910). It is situated on the Rhine at its confluence with the Neckar, and lines of railway connect it with Frankfort, Darmstadt, Mainz, Metz, Stuttgart, Basel, Strasburg and Würzburg &c. Steamers run to Holland and Belgium. The principal industries of the district are the manufactures of colors, machinery, india rubber goods, chemical products, beet sugar, soap, perfumery and leather goods; near here (at Waldhof) is also an immense establishment (the largest in the world) for the production of wood pulp and cellulose. The commerce is also considerable in the products of the country, wine, tobacco, hops, corn grain, lime &c., also in wooden clocks, the industry of the Black Forest. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

Lloyd's Agent, Friedrich Weinmann.

MEMEL (EAST PRUSSIA). Population, 20,685.

This port is to a considerable extent a port of transit for goods to and from Russia.

The existence of Memel may be said to depend almost entirely on the timber trade—80 per cent. of the vessels leaving the port being freighted with timber (oak staves and fir sleepers).

The principal industry of the place is the felling and cutting of pine logs into deals and planks, which gives employment to some thousands of labourers. There are also various other important factories.

Principal articles of export are: timber, flax, grain and linseed, celluloid, manure and chemicals.

Principal articles of import are: timber, coals, flax, manure and chemicals, dry goods and linen goods, manure (raw material), salt, rum, wine, spirits and herrings.

Here is a Chamber of Commerce. Lloyd's Agent, H. Gawehn

MUNICH (MÜNCHEN) is the capital of BAVARIA, and one of the industrial centres of Germany (population, 596,467) (1910), and is noted for its beer. The quantity of beer brewed during 1912 was 81,552,000 gallons, of which 39,831,500 gallons were exported. Munich is the centre of the Bavarian railways, which connect the West with the East of Europe. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

STETTIN, the chief town in POMERANIA, has a population of 234,033 (December 1st, 1910). It is situated on the Oder, 30 miles from its mouth, and is a port of very considerable importance, second only to Hamburg. It is connected by lines of railway with Berlin, Breslau, Posen, Kœnigsberg, Stralsund, Riga &c. and by lines of steamers with St. Petersburg, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Riga, Reval &c.; also with London and United States of America. Among the industries of the place the manufacture of potato spirit is important, also the various other industries connected with potatoes, such as potato starch, syrup, sugar; also beetroot sugar. There are also important manufactories of Portland cement, which is very largely exported. Shipbuilding is the most important industry. The Stettin Machine and Shipbuilding Company, "Vulcan," takes the first place among the industries of Stettin, as well as among the shipyards in Germany.

The manufacture of ready-made clothing has become one of the most important industries. The yearly production of ready-made clothing amounts to about 45,000,000 marks (£2,250,000). The larger part of the output is disposed of in Germany, but large parcels are also exported to Scandinavia and South Africa. The export to the United Kingdom is small.

Commerce: The principal articles of import to Stettin are herrings, iron (raw), coal and coke, timber, cement and clay, stones and bricks, seeds, wool and cotton, drugs and chemicals, groceries, oils and grease, coffee, petroleum, ice, paper, grain and flour &c.

The principal articles of export from Stettin are lead, zinc and tin, potatoes, sugar, timber, farina, molasses, paper, drugs &c.

Lloyd's Agent, Gustaf Metzler, Königstr. 15

HELIGOLAND

HELIGOLAND is a small island about 3 miles in circumference, comprising an area of 140 acres; it is situated off the west coast of Holstein, about 25 miles from the mouths of the Weser, the Elbe, the Jahde and Eider. It was taken possession of by Great Britain in 1807, and ceded to Germany in 1890. The population, a little over 2,000, chiefly consists of fishermen. All goods have to be imported viâ the continent, whence in the season twenty-three steamers ply weekly. In the winter there are two steamers, which run weekly from Hamburg with the mails; the remainder of the trade is carried on by coasting vessels. The island is much frequented by the northern fishing fleets, and in winter and spring large quantities of fish are caught by the inhabitants and sent to the continent.

Lloyd's Agent.—Jasper Michel Bufe.

GERMAN EAST AFRICA

GERMAN EAST AFRICA is bounded on the north by British East Africa and the Victoria Nyanza, on the west by Lakes Tanganika and Nyassa, on the south by the river Rovuma, and on the east by the Indian Ocean. The total area is about 995,000 square kiloms. This large territory is a part of the highlands stretching from Abyssinia to the Cape. Portions of the three great lakes are also included in the territory. They are:—Lake Victoria, 1,800 metres above the level of the sea, with an area of about 66,000 square kiloms.; Lake Tanganika, 880 metres above the level of the sea and 35,000 square kiloms. in size; Lake Nyassa, 500 metres above the level of the sea and 27,000 square kiloms. in size. The plateaux in the interior are somewhat sterile. The following rivers run into the Indian Ocean (from north to south):—The Umba, boundary between German and British East Africa; Pangani, with its sources in Mount Kilimanjaro; Wami and Kingani, whose mouths are opposite Zanzibar; Rufiji, flowing out opposite Mafia Island; Rovuma, the boundary between Portuguese and German East Africa. Into Lake Tanganika flows the Mlagarassi, and the Kagera into Lake Victoria Nyanza. The native population on January 1st, 1912, was 7,495,800, and the white population was 4,866.

The imports consist chiefly of cotton goods, iron and metal goods, petroleum, glass, tobacco, rice and groceries.

The principal exports consist of coffee, ivory, rubber, fibre, copra, hides, skins, wax, groundnuts and cotton.

British Consul-General for German East Africa (vacant).

STEAMSHIP COMMUNICATIONS. Deutsch Ost-Afrika Linie from Hamburg viâ Suez Canal, two services every three and six weeks; Compagnie des Messageries Maritimes from Marseilles monthly viâ Zanzibar; British India Steam Navigation Co. from London monthly viâ Zanzibar.

GERMAN POSSESSIONS IN EASTERN ASIA

KIAU-TSCHOU-BAI, in the Chinese province of Shantung, was taken possession of by Germany on the 14th November, 1897, and finally leased to them by the Chinese Government for a period of 99 years. The territory comprises some 551 square kilomètres, with a population of about 130,000 (4,431 whites). The seat of the Government is at Tsingtau.

There is mail steamer communication with Shanghai twice or three times a week.

The total exports and imports during 1912 were valued at Hk. Taels 61,042,828.

The chief imports are opium, cotton and woollen goods, metals, gunny bags, matches, kerosene oil; and the chief exports are straw braids, groundnuts, bean and nut oil, silk, hides and skins.

TSINGTAU is the chief port, with a population of 60,484. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

GREECE

THE population of the kingdom in 1907 was 2,631,952.

COMMERCE.—The staple product of the country is currants, and upon this crop the prosperity of the country almost entirely depends. The rest of the exports consist chiefly of olive oil, olives, sponges, minerals, zinc, tobacco, wine, lead and valonia.

The imports consist chiefly of cereals, textile goods, coal, minerals, timber, codfish, chemicals, live stock &c.

Greece possesses considerable mineral wealth, both on the mainland and in the islands. Although concessions have for some time been granted for the exploitation of mines of known value, only a few of these are actually being worked, such as the Laurium lead mines and the Laurium scoriæ deposits. At both these establishments extensive smelting works have been erected, and shipments of metal are being continually made to Europe and America. In the islands exist very valuable iron and lead and copper mines, some of which are being worked. Lignite also exists, especially in Eubœa, the mine at Platana, near Kyme, being of very fair quality, and in request by steamboat and factory owners and also for household purposes. Magnesite is found in the northern part of Eubœa, in Limnos, near Megara, and as far west as Perachora, and in Locris and Phthivdis. Greek magnesite is exported to England, France, Hamburg, Belgium and the United States, and is used for making or lining metallurgical furnaces for the process of Bessemer-steel making, for the manufacture of magnesium soil into artificial marble &c.

The emery stone of Naxos is considered to be of the very best quality obtainable, and belongs to the Greek government, who cede the working thereof on short leases. The quantity exported during 1912 was 7,847 tons.

The salt deposits, which are plentiful and of good quality, also belong to the government, who keep the sale of this and petroleum and matches in their own hands as a government monopoly.

Marble is quarried to a large extent, the total output for 1910 being 2,851,217 cubic metres, of which 2,360,881 cubic metres were exported.

Millstones and gypsum are also to be found, of good quality.

The Santorini pumice cement, being useful in hydraulic works, is in demand in Turkey, Egypt, Europe and Greece.

ARTA is the capital of EPIRUS, with a population of 7,500 inhabitants.

The produce of the country is exported through the harbour of Coprena in the Ambracian Gulf, and the goods imported are also introduced from the same port. The other harbour is in Turkish territory and serves as the place of import for European goods destined for Turkey, and particularly for Jannina.

The trade of Arta consists chiefly in butter and cheese, silkworms, cods, wool and grain.

CALAMATA, with a population of 21,000, is the capital of the Nomarchy of Messenia, and lies at the top of the Gulf of Messenia. Besides the Greek lines of steamers, which call regularly here, the Austrian Lloyd calls every week, and the Pan Hellenic every week, the Messageries Maritimes, the Cie. Royale Neerlandaise every fortnight, the Austro-American every fortnight, the Deutsche Levant line every month, Bell's Orient line every month, and the "Moraïtis" new company and the National Transatlantic Co. for America. Imports consist of general merchandise. Exports consist of currants, figs, olive oil, silk cocoons, silk, valonia, skins, wine, vermilion and fustic. The principal trade is done with Austria, Holland, France, Germany and Great Britain, and America U.S. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.
Lloyd's Sub-Agent, D. Dimeneghini.

CHALKIS.—This town is the capital of the island of EUBŒA. Eubœa is rich in mines; those of lignite, marble, whitestone (magnesitis), chrome and manganese are regularly exploited; large quantities of whitestone are sent to England. The woods are composed of pine, oak, fir and willow trees, from which resin and charcoal are manufactured. Chalkis exports grapes, raisins, wine, olives, oil &c., and imports English and European manufactures through Syra and Piræus. The population of Eubœa is about 105,000; that of Chalkis 10,000.

LARISSA. The province of Thessaly is divided into two nomarchies or departments, that of Larissa and that of Trikkala. The chief town of the first is Larissa, situate on the river Peneios. The inhabitants of the department number about 150,000, and of the chief town Larissa 20,000.

Larissa is connected by rail with Volo, Velestino, Pharsalos, Karditsa, Trikkala, Kalambaka, Athens, the Piræus, and the famous Vallée de Tempès.

The nomarchy of Larissa produces wheat, barley, maize, sesame, beans, chickpeas, tobacco, cotton, silk cocoons, wool, skins, melons, grapes, wine, alcohol and various kinds of fruits.

Cattle raising is also carried on to a considerable extent. Large numbers of sheep, lambs and calves are being continually shipped from Volo to Piræus, chiefly for consumption in Athens.

PATRAS, the most important commercial centre in Greece, is situated in the bay of the same name, about 5 miles from the Gulf of Corinth. The population is 40,000.

Patras is not only the principal city in the Morea, but also the head centre of the whole currant trade. The currant crop for 1912 reached a total of 333,000,000 Venetian lbs., of which 239,65 ,323 lbs. were exported. Tobacco and valonia are also exported. Besides the fruit annually shipped from here, this port has a lively import and export trade, while the Patras bankers, merchants, shipping and insurance agents regulate the whole commerce of the Peloponnesus into its furthest ramifications.

The most important items in the import trade are the textile fabrics, almost exclusively from England, Austria and France; also salt and codfish and pickled salmon from Labrador and Newfoundland, and herrings and bloaters from the United Kingdom.

Next in importance to these are the grain imports from Russia, Turkey, and the Danubian Principalities.

Owing to the frequent direct sailings of first-class ocean steamers of the Austro American Line, the Hellenic Transatlantic Line and the National Steam Navigation Company of Greece, which provide a weekly service from Patras to New York, Patras has become the most important emigration port in the Levant, and now constitutes the connecting link for all cargo and emigrant traffic between the Orient and the American continent.

Patras is also one of the principal ports of call for the Greek mail steamer companies, and for the Austrian Lloyd steamers and Florio Rubattino from Brindisi; Messageries Maritimes from Marseilles; Austro-Americana from Trieste, weekly service to New York. The German Levant line and Freitas & Co. also call here regularly and take cargo to Rotterdam and Hamburg, and an English steamer service exists between Patras and Liverpool, conveying goods to this port regularly every fortnight.

The PIRÆUS is a well protected port. The harbour has a water area of about 500 acres and good anchorage. Vessels not drawing more than 27 feet can always enter the port. Loading and discharging is done by lighters, and grain and timber are discharged at the quay. Dry docks with other harbour improvements are being undertaken. Connected by electric railway and steam tramway with Athens. The population (1907) is 74,580. The following is the list of steamship lines calling regularly at Piræus: Greek, The New Hellenic Co., Panhellenic Co., Goudi, MacDowall & Barbour, Athanasoulis, Pantaléon; Astrapi, Destoumi & Yannounatos Leoussi, Papaleonardos; Compagnie Hellénique de Navigation Transatlantique; French, Messageries & Fraissinet; Anglo-Hellenic Steam Ship Co. Ltd.; American, The Archipelago-American Steamship Co. (Smyrna); Austrian, Austrian Lloyd Line; Belgian, Ligne Franco-Belge, Adolf Deppe (Antwerp); Italian, Florio Rubattino; Egyptian, Khedivial Co.; German, Deutsche Levant Line, Hamburg-American Line, North German Lloyd; National Steam Ship Co. Limited; British, Bell's Line, W. Johnstone & Co., Westcott & Laurence; Danish, Forenede DampskibsSelskab; Swedish, Svenska Levanti Line; Russian, Compagnie Russe de Navigation à vapeur Dutch, Royale Neerlandaise; Turkish, Orient Line, Horn Line. It is the head of the coasting trade of Greece, and is rapidly rising in importance. The imports consist of wheat, hardware, metals, pharmaceutical articles, coals and comestibles, timber, staves, railway sleepers and cotton. The exports consist chiefly of wine, oil, olives, valonia, tobacco leaf, raw hides, cognac, cotton manufactures, Pentelicus marble, &c. The Pentelicon Marble Quarries, owned by the Grecian Marbles (Marmor) Limited, which has also quarries on the islands of Skyros and Paros, and at Mani, in Laconia, are now connected by rail with the Piræus, the Athens and Kephisia line having been extended by the company up to the foot of the quarries. Much greater facilities therefore exist now for exporting this marble, of which there are almost inexhaustible supplies.

PYRGOS, a town of nearly 20,000 inhabitants, is the capital of the eparchy of Eleia. Its harbour, Catakolon, with which it is connected by a short railway (7½ miles long), comes next to Patras in importance as regards the export of currants from the Peloponnesus. Austrian Lloyd, Fraissinet and other steamers call here regularly; it is the usual landing place for European visitors to the ancient remains at Olympia, about 12½ miles distant from Pyrgos. The chief article of export is currants; a few raw skins and wine in barrel are also exported. The principal imports are manufactures, twist, linen, hemp and jute goods, readymade clothes, hardware, cutlery, earthenware, glassware, lamps, sulphur for vines, dried and pickled fish, caviare (black and red), rice, sugar, coffee and other colonial produce, staves and hoops, colors, unwrought metals and oleaginous matter for industrial purposes.

ST. MAURE, see LEUCAS.

SALONICA is the principal starting point for all commercial transactions with the interior, namely, Albania, Macedonia, South of Bulgaria, Servia and Bosnia. It is through Salonica that nearly all the above countries are supplied with what they most need, and it is to this port that a considerable portion of their surplus products is sent for exportation. Population, a little over 160,000.

The Austro-Hungarian Lloyd, the French Messageries Maritimes, the Fraissinet Companies, Johnston's, the Royal Dutch S. S. Co. Rotterdam Amsterdam, the Deutsche Levante-Linie, Hamburg, Atlas Line, Bremen, the Papayanni S.S. Co. Adolf Deppe's, Antwerp, the Italian Navigazione Generale, the Russian Steam Navigation Co. and some smaller Greek and Ottoman Companies' boats call here.

Principal articles of import, cotton goods, yarn, metals, coffee, leather, silk, petroleum, corn, sugar, coals, rice &c.; and the exports consist of cereals, tobacco, skins, cocoons, opium, seeds, wool &c.

The total imports during 1911 were valued at £4,663,105, and the exports at £1,428,681.

The total number of steam vessels entered during 1911 was 960, of 1,044,020 tons.

Here is a Turkish Chamber of Commerce.

SANTORINI (Thera) is the most southerly of the Cyclades. The population amounts to 25,000. The articles of export are pumice stones (chiefly to Belgium and Austria), the pozzolana cement, preserved tomatoes and the excellent native wines. The cement is obtained from Acrotirion and Thera (in Santorini) and from the neighbouring islet of Therasia; large quantities are shipped to Kustendjé (Roumania) and Trieste, also to Turkey, Malta, Egypt and other parts of the Mediterranean; it is in great request for hydraulic works. Of the wines, the most noted are the white and red "Malmsey," or Malvoisy, known in the island by the name of vino santo, a full-bodied claret of excellent quality. All the Santorini wines "keep," and will stand a sea voyage. Russia takes most of these wines, sending in return grain, timber, staves and hoops. Large quantities of wine are also shipped to Malta, Germany, China, and, only very little, to London. The average production amounts to 50,000 hectolitres.

Several Greek liners, Hermoupolis Company of the Piræus, and the New Hellenic Company of Syra, call regularly at the port of Santorini during the year.

SYRA is one of the Cyclades islands. Hermoupolis, the capital, is a town with 21,000 inhabitants.

Syra was formerly a large distributing centre of commerce for nearly the whole of the Levant, but goods are now conveyed direct to nearly all parts and do not pass through here in transit.

The imports in 1912 amounted to £306,690, while the exports were £77,640.

The following steamship companies maintain regular service with this port, viz. :—The Cunard, Ellermans, Moss and PapayanniCompanies, the Messageries Maritimes, the Austrian Lloyd Steamship Company, the Deutsche Levant Linie of Hamburg, the Cycladienne Company, Macdowall & Barbour, and the Hellenic Company, P. Pantaleon.

ZEA is one of the Cyclades Islands situated halfway between Syra and the mainland opposite Laurium (Ergasteria).

The capital, Zea, is the only town and has about 5,000 inhabitants.

Several mines of considerable value exist, producing argentiferous lead, manganese and iron, but no mines are now being worked. The principal products consist of vallonea, cattle, wine, barley, hides and honey.

The island, lying as it does in the direct routes of steamers passing to and from Constantinople and the Black Sea, affords steamers the advantage of taking coals at Zea without deviation. This has led to the installation of a large coaling depôt in the port of St. Nicolo.

CRETE

CRETE.—The three principal ports of Crete, one of the largest islands in the Mediterranean, are Candia, Canea and Rethymo. The other ports are Suda, Calyves, Bali, Melata, San Nicolà and Sitia. The staple product of the island is olive oil, which is also the principa article of export goat skins, raisins, together with valonia, wine, locust beans, soap and cedrates. The greater part of the wine, especially that of inferior quality, finds its way to Egypt and the coast of Barbary, while the rest is bought for the French, German and Italian markets. The Cretan wines, being very alcoholic, are found useful for fortifying the weaker qualities of France and Germany.

The imports of British manufacture are principally Manchester goods and woollen stuffs and cloth. Germany and Austria, from their closer proximity and their direct communication with the island, are keen competitors. The population of the entire island in 1911 was 336,151.

The Export and Import trade of Crete during 1911 amounted to Drachmæ 34,922,575.

Exports. Principal Articles.	Value. 1911. Drachmæ.
Olive oil	4,870,750
Raisins	2,391,425
Carobs	1,811,275
Soap	1,138,075
Wine	1,407,675
Olive kernel oil	339,825
Cedrates	1,003,900
Goat skins	290,075
Oranges and mandarines	338,600

The Monetary Unit is the Drachma, value about 9½d. British and $ .193 United States.

CANDIA is the second town of the island, with a population of (1911) 25,185. Chief exports are olive oil, soap, locust beans, wine, dried raisins and lemons.

SAMOS

SAMOS, a large island in the Greek Archipelago, south of Chios, 45 miles west of Smyrna. The inhabitants in 1908 numbered 53,051, nearly all Greeks.

The imports consist of manufactured goods, colonial produce, alcohol &c. The latter, which is used in the preparation of wine, amounts to £25,000 per annum, and is chiefly obtained from Hungary, Russia and Greece.

The exports consist of wine, chiefly taken by France, North Germany, Belgium, Holland and the Scandinavian countries; raisins, leather, olive oil, cigarettes, tobacco to Europe, and also a considerable quantity of oranges, lemons, citrons, almonds, olives, onions &c.

The island possesses good harbours, the principal port being Vathy (the capital of the island).

Several lines of steamers call regularly at the island, namely, the Messageries Maritimes, the Austrian Lloyds, the Pantaleon, Achaia, and Archipelago-American Companies.

There are deposits of minerals, ochre, iron ore, loadstone, emery, but the most valuable are antimony and silver-lead; there is also marble of good quality.

HOLLAND,

OR THE NETHERLANDS

THIS kingdom has an area of 12,650 square miles and a population on Dec. 31, 1909, of 5,898,429. Its extent from north to south is about 160 miles and from east to west about 100 miles. Nearly half its exterior commerce is carried on with Great Britain.

COMMERCE.—Holland is, above all things, a commercial country, and derives its principal importance from trade with its eastern possessions and with foreign nations. It is, however, mainly as an outlet and inlet for the trade of northern Europe that its importance at present consists. The imports consist principally of grain, Indian corn, beans, peas, rice, brans, flour, groundnuts, palmnuts, seeds, feeding cakes; oils, cottonseed, sesam, petroleum; fish, meat, tallow, lard, margarine (raw), salt, syrup, melado, molasses, sugar, tobacco and cigars, tea, coffee, spices, fruit (tree) fresh, other fruit, wine, spirits, beer and malt extract, mineral waters, ores, metals, engines, wood and timber, drugs, dye stuffs, chemicals &c. The exports consist to a great extent of goods in transit. The great bulk of the colonial trade of the country is, of course, carried on with its colonies, both in East and West Indies; by far the largest proportion of the produce of these colonies is imported into Holland by and for account of the Netherlands Government through the Dutch Trading Co.

The export and import trade of Holland during 1910 amounted to Florins 5,897,598,374.
